

The leadership of the World Federation of Vascular Societies and its Council Members are deeply saddened to hear of the passing of our esteemed colleague and friend, Professor Roger Greenhalgh (1941-2023). His departure leaves a profound void in our hearts and in the field of vascular surgery.

Professor Roger Greenhalgh was not only a brilliant and accomplished vascular surgeon but had been a dedicated educator and true visionary in our specialty. His lifelong commitment to the advancement of vascular surgery has left an indelible mark on our community. His passion for teaching and his ability to inspire generations of young surgeons have enriched our profession beyond measure. We are appreciative of not only his surgical excellence but his wisdom, guidance and unwavering love for the field which has shaped the careers of countless surgeons. It is this legacy that will continue influencing and inspiring advancements in our field.

Our thoughts and prayers are with his family, friends, and colleagues. We share in your grief and extend our deepest condolences. His memory will be forever cherished within our community and his impact will resonate for generations to come.

May Professor Roger Greenhalgh rest in peace and may his family find solace in the knowledge that his legacy will endure in the hearts and minds of those he inspired.

With heartfelt sympathy,

The WFVS Executive Council
